

EMPLOYEES FAVOR WAGE REVISION ON NATION-WIDE PLAN

Committee Hears Field Workers Ask for Increases.

How to make reclassification legislation apply to the federal employees throughout the United States as well as the federal and District employees in Washington, interested the joint civil service committee of the senate and house at yesterday's hearings in room 235, senate office building.

Senators Sterling and Heflin and Representatives Fairchild and Black questioned W. J. Coyne, president of the 25th district branch of the New York Union of Federal Employees along this line. Coyne is an immigrant inspector.

Coyne favored a proper system of service promotion applicable to all government employees and the classification of immigrant inspectors so that their minimum wage would be at least $2,000. He said the entire force is now on a starvation basis and that the government has lost millions of dollars in the care of insane and otherwise defective aliens. He said there are different rates of pay for the 40 interpreters in his territory, the 100 watchmen have four grades, the 25 mailmen and 25 charwomen and all other employees are variously graded and inequalities are so many that nothing can approach justice except legislation of the kind proposed in the bills offered by Senator Sterling and Representative Lehlbach.

Is self-sustaining.

"The immigration service practically dates from the sudden great influx of 700,000 aliens in 1881. The service has grown in a haphazard way and for ten years has been practically starved for lack of appropriations. The service is more than self-sustaining."

Appearing for federal employees of the customs service in New York, J. J. Vile, said the growth of the customs service has been without definite plan. Positions have been created to take care of special work or of men and appointments have been made on the recommendation of the head of the office.

"For more than fifty years," said Vile, "there has been no general increase in pay by an act of congress limiting their pay to $2.33 a day. We believe a good and efficient service will save the government far more than it will cost."

Favor Sterling Bill.

"I favor the Sterling and Lehlbach bills for reclassification of federal employees," said Vile. "The employees should have representation before the classification agency." Theodore H. Saal appeared as spokesman for federal employees of greater New York and vicinity of whose organization he is secretary. He said there are about twice as many federal employees in the field service as in the departments in Washington. The field service is certainly much in need of reclassification as the service in the national capital, he declared.

"We have a tremendous body of woefully underpaid employees in New York," said Saal. "Nearly 1,000 of them receive less than $2 a day, base pay. Many guards and watchmen, especially those at the post-office building, receive only $720 a year, out of which they must provide for their own expenses and uniforms. There is a growth of inequalities between titles and work performed. The Smoot reclassification bill does not provide for the new field service in view of the proposed abolishment of the bonus."

Christopher Gayler and G. C. Lawder of the Boston customs service, who heard during the morning, said they would be glad to work two shifts a day and are exposed to many dangers, receiving at present only $1,410 a year with a seven-day week and only 14 days annual leave.

Senators Sterling and Representative Lehlbach suggested that the police and criminal investigation service in the Sterling bill, as the probable allocation for the customs guard with a salary range of $1,650 to $1,920.

MARINE PLANE SPEEDS ITS PHOTOGRAPHY

"Devil Dog" speed set a new mark yesterday, its own government the target. A new era in photography is thought to have been reached with the publication of this picture of the Mayflower steaming up the Potomac river yesterday with President Harding and party aboard on the return trip from New York. The picture was taken in a marine airplane as the yacht passed Quantico. A dark room had been fitted in the machine and the picture was taken and developed aboard the plane as it turned its course toward Washington, where the picture was dropped at navy headquarters 15 minutes later.

CONFIDENCE MEN
ROB AGED NEGRO

Gives $333 for Pocketbook, But Finds No Money Inside.

Thieves and pickpockets were very active yesterday according to the police.

Charlie Dean, an aged colored man, told the police that he deposited his entire savings, which amounted to $333, in the National Trust and Savings bank and when he left the building he was accosted by a negro man, who called his attention to another negro, who had just found a pocketbook containing a large sum of money.

The negro told Dean that the bills in the purse were of such large denominations, that they would readily exchange the purse and contents for ready cash. Dean thereupon drew out his savings, amounting to $333 and made the exchange. The negro vanished. Dean's purse was worthless.

To Avoid Draft, Married, But Kept Fighting, Says Wife

Thomas J. Cannon, a lunchroom employee, who came to this country seven years ago from County Galway, Ireland, preferred domestic warfare to trench warfare, his wife, Catherine Cannon, said yesterday in police court when the husband was arraigned before Judge Harrison on an assault charge.

"He married me four years ago to get out of the draft," Mrs. Cannon said. "and when all danger of his being drafted was over he went to war with me and has been at it ever since."

The four years of strife ended, Mrs. Cannon said, in a temporary armistice on May 22, when her husband, she alleged, threw a glass at her and raised a big bump over her eye. She took refuge at the home of her sister in Chevy Chase, she said.

The wife related other acts of alleged brutality—telling the court that Cannon once chased her with a butcher knife and struck her 2-year-old baby girl with his shoe. Ever since she married, Mrs. Cannon sobbed, she has been "treated like a dog."

Cannon denied all his wife's charges. He blamed his troubles on his wife's desire to be with her sister and said her alleged late of housework. The court suspended a 60-day jail sentence and warned the husband not to repeat the offense.

SENATE MAY TAKE THREE DAYS' REST

Leaders Realize Naval Bill De- bate Precludes Early Vote.

Democratic and republican senate leaders were discussing yesterday the probability of adjourning tomorrow evening until Tuesday. Monday is Memorial Day and Saturday is a good day for fishing and week-end junketing. The suggestion was made to Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican whip, that his colleagues needed a rest after the arduous of two weeks on the naval bill, and he sounded several of them on their views. Announcement of the decision will be made today.

In view of statements of Senators King and Pomeroy, of the democratic side, yesterday that they expected to be heard at considerable length on amendments they are to propose to the naval bill, and of Senator McKellar, of Tenn., that he desires to see his amendment providing for the reinstatement of Naval academy students thoroughly understood, it became apparent yesterday that the naval debate probably would not be completed this week. One prediction was made that it would be Wednesday before the measure comes to a vote.

There is some discord on the various government reorganization bills, particularly those providing for reclassification of employees, but senators who are pushing the measure believe the administration program will be voted straight through when the kinks are removed by the committees.

Senator McCormick expects the budget bill to be passed next week. The question of the street car merger in Washington is likely to consume a large amount of senators' attention.

September, October and November will be the vacation period if the tentative program does not go awry.

FRENCHMAN SAYS WAR HAVOC MUST BE REMEMBERED

Address Before City Club Made by Former Com- missioner.

A fervent plea to Americans to remember the havoc wrought in France by the German armies was made by Lieut. Vincent de Wiersbicki, member of the French High commission to the United States, in an address at the City club luncheon forum yesterday.

Reading The Hague convention pledges for orderly war with Germany signed in 1907, Lieut. de Wiersbicki then recounted the damage done to the French occupied regions in defiance of these pledges.

It is for these reasons, the speaker said, that France today is seeking greater security than she obtained by the peace treaty.

Referring to the statement of John Walsh, chairman of the meeting, that some people believed the war had been fought in vain, Lieut. de Wiersbicki said he would not argue to prove this because he did not believe it.

The speaker closed with a plea that Americans keep in mind that the Germans had added science to the ordinary destruction of war and made it as destructive as science could make it. "You are inclined to think of war as a gentleman's fight," he said, "because you have always fought gentlemanly Indians, gentlemanly British, gentlemanly Mexicans. Remember that France, and for a time since, has fought Huns and Vandals."

Lieut. de Wiersbicki was given a vote of thanks by the audience.

The proposed amendment would prohibit polygamy and polygamist cohabitation within the United States.

Instances in which a man could "legally" have two wives with immunity from prosecution because the second ceremony was performed in Connecticut, and he left that state with his bride, immediately after the ceremony, would be brought under the jurisdiction of the federal courts.

ADOPTS STANDARD WEIGHTS FOR LOAF OF BREAD, WITH FINES FOR ITS VIOLATION

Model Law for Regulating Bakeries Approved And Will Be Submitted to Interested Cities.

As a result of the past few days' discussion of a bread weight standard, a model bread weight law was framed by a committee of the annual conference on weights and measures and was adopted at the meeting at the bureau of standards yesterday.

This draft of the law provides that loaves of bread offered for sale shall be one-half, one and one-half, two or four multiples of one pound avoirdupois, in weight, and that biscuits, buns, crackers, rolls, or "stale" bread should not be included under this law. Penalties of $5, $20 or $50 for the first offense, and $50 to $100 or imprisonment for 60 days, for the second offense, are provided. The committee that framed the law consisted of August W. Schwartz, of New Jersey; W. W. White, of New York; G. W. Frary, of South Dakota; an "Schoenthal," of the Colorado legislature. The question of tolerances was considered, but not acted upon.

The weights and measures men at the morning session heard Secretary of Commerce Hoover tell of the benefits of standardization and the savings that can be effected by minimizing wastes of industry and trade by such measures.

Liquid measuring devices such as are used for measuring gasoline were discussed, and the committee on tolerances and specifications framed detailed specifications and limits of required accuracy for such devices.

The fundamentals that underlie the operation and design of liquid-measuring devices were explained by a talk by R. W. Smith, of the bureau of standards.

Delegates to the conference were taken on a sightseeing trip about Washington in a long column of automobiles yesterday afternoon after the sessions.

The conference will adjourn today and the results of their meeting will be embodied in a report of recommendation to the secretary of commerce.

Landis Says Most Dry Law Violators Aliens

CHICAGO, May 25.—The ire of Judge Landis was aroused today when Charles Carmelli, saloon owner, admitted that he was not a citizen of the United States. Neither was his bartender, Fred Mursel, Carmelli was on trial for violation of the prohibition laws.

"It strikes me as significant," said the judge, "that almost invariably you saloon men arrested on these charges prove to be aliens. You can't expect much sympathy from this court. Ninety-nine per cent of the violators of the Eighteenth amendment are not citizens of the United States."
